Patients presenting to Gynaecology Emergency Department (GED) with symptoms following their gynaecology surgery or procedure

We have given you this leaflet because you have presented to the Gynae Emergency Department with symptoms following your Gynaecological surgery or procedure.

After assessment by our emergency team, we have asked you to self-refer to your local services in the community, such as your GP.

We work together with local GP's and other community services across Liverpool because they are much better equipped at managing symptoms which don't require emergency care in hospital.

We will notify your GP that you have attended the department today and that you may attend their service for assessment.

Who is the Gynaecology Emergency Department for?

The Gynaecology Emergency Department is for people who need emergency treatment for serious or life-threatening gynaecology or early pregnancy problems.

This includes situations like:

- Severe tummy pain requiring emergency surgery
- Heavy vaginal bleeding that requires a blood transfusion or emergency surgery
- Severe tummy or vaginal infections requiring antibiotics through a drip

There are often long waits to see a Doctor or specialist Nurse. This is because we must prioritise patients who require emergency care first.

Where can I get help with my symptoms?

General Practice

Your GP will be able to help you with your symptoms and offer further tests if they are required. If your symptoms require a review by a specialist, your GP can refer you to a specialist community service or the hospital.

NHS 111

If you need same day urgent care or you aren't sure which service is the best option for you, contact NHS 111. They will be able to advise you the best service for the treatment you need. The NHS 111 service is available 24 hours a day, 365 days a year. Calls are free from mobile phones and landlines. In an emergency, you should ring 999.

I am waiting for a Gynaecology clinic, surgery or procedure appointment, where can I find more information?

The Liverpool Women's Access Centre will be able to update you on your appointment if:

- Your GP has referred you to Gynaecology but you are still waiting to be seen
- You have been seen by our Gynaecology service and are still receiving treatment or waiting for an operation
- You have been discharged to Patient Initiated Follow Up (PIFU)

Please call the Gynaecology Access Centre on 0151 702 4328 (and select option 3), for more information.

Please note, if you have not been referred to Gynaecology or you have been discharged without Patient Initiated Follow Up (PIFU), you will need to see your GP.

When should I come back to the Gynaecology Emergency Department?

If you develop any of the following symptoms, please attend the Gynae Emergency Department or your nearest A&E as soon as possible:

- Severe pelvic or abdominal pain, not relieved by pain relief such as paracetamol or ibuprofen
- Heavy vaginal bleeding (soaking through 3 or more sanitary pads per hour)
- Running a high temperature or feeling feverish
- Wound swelling, redness or leaking discharge
- Vaginal discharge that smells offensive
- Vomiting for more than 24 hours
- No bowel motions or flatus for more than 24 hours
- Difficulty passing urine (wee) or seeing blood in your urine (wee)

If you develop any symptoms not listed above, you should see your GP or attend your nearest A&E if they are severe.
